CANADIANS GAIN FIVE MILES IN FRANCE; YANKS POUND AT GATEWAY OF LE MANS

Russians Halted By Costly Nazi Counterattacks All Along Front

Germans Throwing Every- thing into Battle as So- viets Continue To Mass Men for New Drive

By W. W. HERCHER
LONDON, Thursday, Aug. 9 (P)—The Germans are launching desperate counterattacks along virtually all of the 1,000-mile eastern front but are being "bied white," Moscow reported today as it appeared that the Nazis had managed to stem the Red army advance by drawing heavily on their dwindling central reserves.

An early-morning supplement to the Soviet war bulletin underlined the German counter-blow in nearly every sector but asserted that all were repulsed and added, "our troops are stubbornly advancing."

One such Nazi counterattacks has been smashed after several days of bitter fighting on the Latvian-Lithuanian border and the Russians have resumed their push toward Riga, the regular Soviet midnight communique said.

All the while the Russians continued to mass men and material for a new steamroller eastern front drive that may carry all the way to Berlin.

Germans Strengthen Forces

Both Soviet and German communique confirmed essentially that the great Russian summer offensive, now in its forty-eighth day, had lost the sweeping mobility that marked its progress during the first forty days, but the German lines were strained and creaking, and salient at any point might spell disaster for the Reich.

To bolster the lines and implement the desperation-born counterattacks, the Germans are throwing into battle everything they have, "even road-building, airborne and other rear detachments," Moscow said.

In the past three weeks, Soviet reports stated, the Germans have sent sixteen divisions to the eastern front, some from the vital reserves of Central Germany, others from Western Poland, Italy, Yugoslavia, Hungary and Norway.

Many Nazi Tanks Destroyed

The Soviet midnight communique said the Germans threw a heavy counterattack of several days' duration in the Birzai direction in North Lithuania but that the Red army had smashed it, killing 6,000 of the enemy, capturing 1,350, and renewed its own offensive, taking more than eighty tanks, including Radicals, on the border forty-three miles south of Riga.

In this battle, part of the massive operation to annihilate the two German armies trapped in the Baltic states, the Russians said they destroyed eighty-nine German tanks and 150 cannon and captured six hundred tanks and seventy-five guns. Hard-fighting penetrations also were made by two other spearheads reaching into Latvia up both sides of the Daugava river towards Riga.

Gov. O'Connor Would "Strengthen" Law

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Aug. 8 (P)—Governor O'Connor announced today that he would ask the Legislature to prepare an amendment which would "strengthen" provisions of the law relating to the re-employment of state employees who have entered the armed forces.

In at least one important aspect, already disclosed by an actual case, the law does not guarantee a returning veteran the position which he would have been filling if he had not joined the armed forces. For instance, in the situation where employees of a certain status have been "upgraded" while a state employee is away in the army, as has happened in the case of a veteran who denied the higher classification upon his return.

KILLED IN ACTION

BRIG. GEN. NELSON M. WALKER (above), a Pittsfield, Mass., native is reported to have been killed by German machine gun fire while personally leading an assault on an enemy position in a hedge-row near the town of Normandy. He was the assistant commander of a United States Infantry division. His widow and daughter live in Pittsfield.

33,000 Workers Are Idle Due to Labor Disputes

(By The Associated Press)

The ranks of workers away from their jobs because of labor disputes swelled again yesterday (Tuesday) and more than 33,000 were idle.

A strike in protest against the firing of seven (CIO) United Auto Workers put 7,000 on the sidelines and halted war production anew at five Chevrolet gear and axle division plants of General Motors Corporation in Detroit.

Approximately 3,000 were out at units of the Wright Aeronautical Corporation in Fair Lawn and Paterson, N. J., in a demonstration against the transfer of seventy-four employees to lower graded work.

Over-the-road freight movement in the central states was crippled by a controversy involving an estimated 5,000 drivers and helpers. Spokesmen for the Midwest truck operators stated there was "little or no hope" for a quick settlement, and contended the government had failed to provide "financial relief" for the owners to compensate them for a wage increase ordered by the War Labor Board. AFL leaders maintained the companies had refused to comply with the pay hike directive.

Shipments Curtailed

M. M. Krupinsky, Nebraska chairman of the Midwest Operators Association, declared the "whole eight-state territory is tied up," including the Dakotas, Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri, Iowa, Minnesota, and parts of Wisconsin.

Over-the-road shipments were curtailed sharply in such traffic centers as St. Louis, Kansas City, Mo., Minneapolis, and St. Paul and several cities in Iowa. The WLB has certified the strike to the White House.

In an unrelated stoppage over what union leaders claimed was a protest against delay in payment of a WLB-authorized pay hike, the Brotherhood of Teamsters requested more than 900 members to resume their tasks on the Pennsylvania truck lines in York, Harrisburg, and Lancaster, Pa.

New York Republican Committee Names Curran To Oppose Wagner

(By The Associated Press)

Thomas J. Curran, Manhattan party leader and long-time associate of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, was assigned by New York Republicans to oppose the veteran Democratic Senator Robert F. Wagner and bolstering GOP efforts to cut into the normally heavy downstate Democratic vote.

The state committee action had been generally forecast since Dewey, Republican presidential nominee, met with state party leaders Monday night. Before that, the race had been rated as wide open. The big question at the conferences was the effect the selection may have on the forty-seven New York electoral votes which Dewey may need in November.

A few hours before the Republican election was announced, the state Democratic committee took its expected action of renominating the

Postwar Labor Measure Brings Senate Debate

Conflict Arises over Unem- ployment Payments to War Workers

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8 (P)—A sharp conflict over postwar unemployment compensation payments to discharged war workers broke out on the floor today immediately after the Senate got down to work on overall legislation to cushion the economic impact of any sudden German collapse.

Republican arguments that the Murray-Kilgore bill to set up a super reversion agency with authority to require payments up to $35 a week would shackle labor under government domination were countered by Senator Wagner (D-N.Y.) who urged:

"Let us not be blinded by the lobby of state bureaucrats who come down here and tell us to do nothing whatsoever that may affect them."

Senator George (D-Ga.), author of a Republican-supported measure to leave the fixing of unemployment rates to the states, but to bring 3,500,000 government workers under their coverage and guarantee the solvency of state unemployment funds, took a shot at the rival bill by declaring it "would be most unwise to approve any system which would induce idleness."

Following up the attack in a statement, Senator Willis (R-Ind.) denounced the Murray-Kilgore bill as a measure to "Hillman-ize and Soviet-ize labor, by shackling re-employment under complete domination of government."

Kilgore's Argument

But Senator Kilgore (D-W.Va.), arguing that "economic chaos is infinitely more costly than measures to prevent it," said average jobless payments of $1250 a year under his bill would not exceed $7,800, 000,000 over a period of two and a half years.

Over the same period he figured the combined cost of unemployment compensation under present state procedure, and relief, at $18,000, 000,000. He said his measure would cut costly job payments by guaranteeing "full production and employment."

In the absence of a program put into reversion, unemployment and production under a single operating agency—his proposed office of war mobilization and adjustment—Kilgore predicted unemployment would reach 18,000,000 during the second year of peace.

Sen. Willis's statement said Kilgore's proposal would "raise our postwar obligations to such stratospheric heights that opportunities for continued and new jobs for our returning servicemen and federal workers would be reduced to the vanishing point." This view was said by Senator Taft (R-Ohio) to represent the sentiment generally expressed at a Republican conference earlier in the day.

Demobilization Bill Completed

Meanwhile, George put the finishing touches on a complete demobilization bill which the coalition probably will support when the voting starts later in the week. Its suggested office of demobilization would operate without the industry and advisory boards proposed in the Murray-Kilgore bill. It leaves out a Murray-Kilgore provision increasing military pay and unemployment benefits for returning war veterans.

It would authorize the federal government to pay transportation expenses up to $200 for "stranded" war workers back to their homes, but not to new job locations as the rival bill proposes. It also eliminates a Murray-Kilgore provision for federally-financed vocational training.

Senator George predicted a vote by Thursday, as he brought the day's debate to an end with Social Security Board estimates that the cost of the bill would cost the treasury $10,405,000,000 over and (Continued on Page 2, Col. 3)

Eight Expelled Army Officers Hanged by Nazis

Executions Take Place Amid Rumors Himmler Killed in New Outbreak

By WADE WERNER
LONDON, Aug. 8 (P)—Eight expelled army officers were hanged today in the Hitler assassination purge, Berlin announced amid rumors — unsubstantiated by German or by Allied authorities — that Heinrich Himmler had been killed and Hermann Goering wounded in a new outbreak against the Nazi regime.

Official broadcasts said Field Marshal Erwin von Witzleben was hanged with seven colleagues for their confessed participation in the July 20 conspiracy to kill Adolf Hitler and surrender Germany to the Allies.

The death sentences were carried out just two hours after a red-robed "People's court" convicted the defendants of high treason.

The two-day trial developed a story of vast intrigue against Hitler and dissatisfaction of high officers over his military ineptitude.

The rumor that Gestapo Chief Himmler was dead came from the British front in Normandy. This report, received with the utmost reserve in London, said a newly captured German intelligence officer related that Himmler had been killed and Goering, Hitler's second in command, wounded. Other prisoners offered to corroborate the officer's story, but all the captives' information was based on what they had been told and not what they themselves had observed.

Property Confiscated

"One German officer captured in Normandy related that he had made a 'pep talk' to his troops and for want of something else had made up a story that Himmler was dead, in order to encourage them, the British radio said. There was no indication, however, that this officer was the same one referred to in the Normandy dispatch."

Berlin's official account of the hangings named those killed as von Witzleben, the chief defendant, Maj. Gen. Erich Hoepfner, Maj. Gen. Helmuth Stieff, Lt. Gen. Paul von Hase, staff officer, Robert Bernhardt, Capt. Friedrich Karl Klaus, Lt. Albrecht von Hegen and Lt. Count von York von Wartenburg. All the property of the executed men was confiscated by the Reich.

This brought to sixteen the deaths which Berlin has announced in connection with the bomb explosion which bruised and burned Hitler. A Berlin broadcast said five other officers cashiered in connection with the conspiracy would be tried by the People's court, presumably immediately. They were listed as Gen. Hellgebel (signals intelligence), Maj. Gen. von Treschow, Col. Hansson (general staff), Maj. Haysen (general staff) and Lt. Count von Der Schulenburg, a relative of the former German ambassador to Moscow.

Five Asked To Be Shot

Five of the defendants asked today to be shot rather than hanged, said the rambling report of the trial broadcast by DNB, German official news agency.

"You wanted to blow the fuelher to pieces and now you ask for a (Continued on Page 2, Col. 1)

ADMIRAL DON MOON TAKES OWN LIFE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8 (P)—Combat fatigue, Navy Secretary Forrestal said today, apparently caused one of the navy's youngest rear admirals to take his own life after participating in the invasion of Europe.

He was Don Pardee Moon, 50, whose task force moved through one of the most heavily mined areas off the French shores to attack the Cherbourg peninsula.

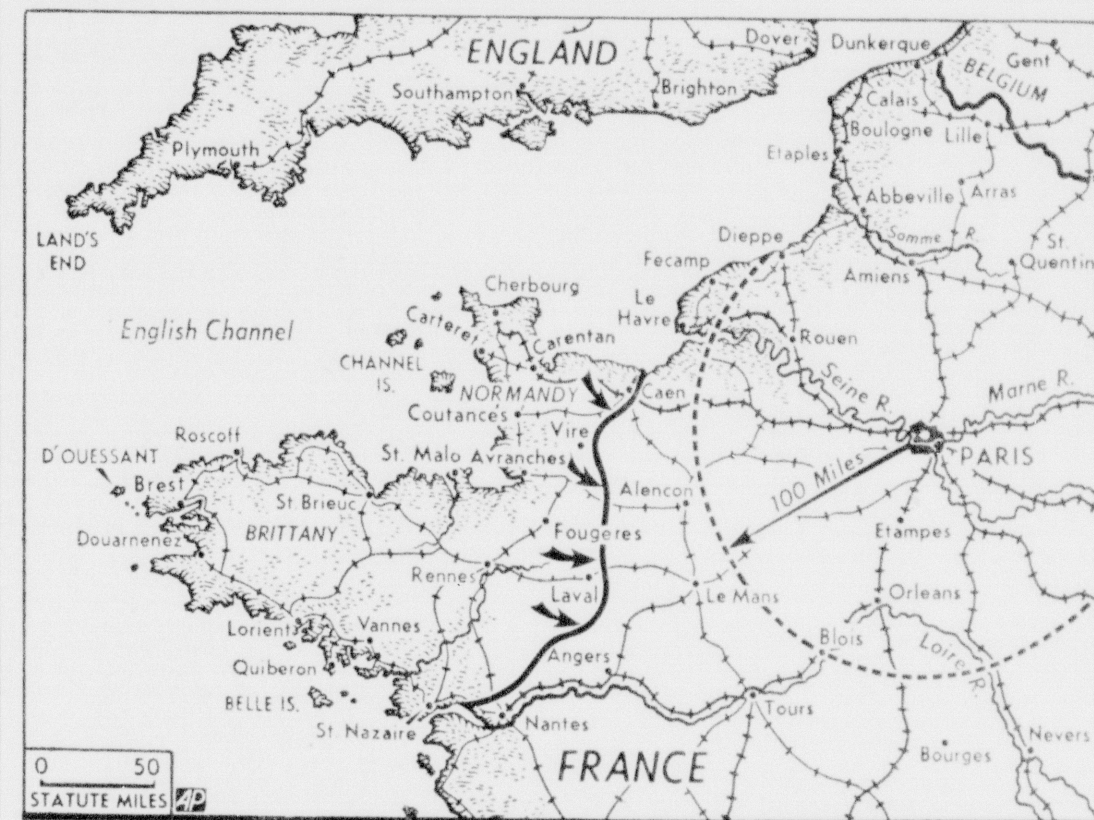

At that time the operation was reported to have been carried out with surprising speed and low casualties.

Where Moon was assigned at the time of his death last Saturday was not disclosed by the navy, which reported only:

"The secretary of the navy announces with regret that Rear Admiral Don Pardee Moon, United States Navy, who commanded a task force that took part in the landings in France, died on August 5, 1944. Apparently Rear Admiral Moon had taken his life as a result of combat fatigue."

Moon was promoted to the rank of rear admiral last January and immediately was assigned to command a task force which subsequently joined in opening the assault on Europe.

FBI Fingerprint Expert Testifies At Treason Trial

Government Nears Close of Case against Jap- American Women

By JOE STOCKER

DENVER, Aug. 8 (P)—Nearing the close of its case, the government today sought to prove that two of the three Japanese-American women being tried on treason charges left their fingerprints on maps allegedly taken from German prisoners of war they are accused of helping to escape.

From Washington came John R. Robyak, FBI fingerprint specialist, to testify that prints found on the maps were of Mrs. Billie Shitara Taniguchi, 32, and Mrs. Tsuruko "Tots" Wallace, 35. The third of the trio of sisters is Mrs. Florence "Flo" Shizue Otani, 33, who was not named in the fingerprint testimony.

But United States District Judge Foster Symes ruled that the maps offered in evidence had not been specially identified by prosecution witnesses as those found on the prisoners, Heinrich Haider and Herman August Loeschner, when they were recaptured.

Joe Gartsdale, Trinidad, Colo., filing station operator, told the jury that Mrs. Wallace obtained road maps from him, explaining she planned to visit her husband's "folks."

The government alleges that the sisters furnished clothing, maps and other equipment to the Germans last October, then drove them in a car from the prisoner of war camp at Trinidad, Colo., to New Mexico. Assistant United States District Attorney Ivor O. Wingen said the government expects to wind up its case soon after the third day's session starts tomorrow. Only about half-dozen prosecution witnesses remain to be called.

Robinson said he has not decided whether to call the sisters to the stand. He plans, he said, to submit a motion for a directed verdict of acquittal.

The Shitara sisters lived at the Granada relocation center, Amache, Colo., and worked on the same farm with the Trinidad internees.

Fritz von Pappen Is under Arrest

ISTANBUL, Aug. 8 (P)—Fritz von Pappen, former ambassador to Turkey, was arrested as soon as he returned Germany today on his return to the Reich from Turkey, it was reported here tonight.

The information came from an official of an international bank here who was a personal friend of von Pappen. The bank official received no details of the arrest.

"The German-controlled Paris radio said earlier today that von Pappen, who left Turkey when that country broke relations with Germany, had arrived in Berlin."

Rommel in Hospital, Berlin Radio Says

NEW YORK, Aug. 8 (P)—The Berlin radio recorded by United States government monitors, said tonight that German Field Marshal Gen. Erwin Rommel, second in command on the Western front who was injured during an Allied air raid July 17, "is being cured" in a hospital.

42,000 Japanese Killed in Burma

By CHARLES A. GRUMICH

SOUTHEAST ASIA COMMAND HEADQUARTERS, Kandy, Ceylon, Aug. 8 (P)—Less than 5,000 effective Japanese fighting men were reported left in India today and an Allied spokesman declared that the Japanese who invaded Manipur state "have taken the biggest hiding they've had on any front."

The Northeast India campaign and Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's push in the North Burmese mountains resulted in the death of 42,000 Japanese and liquidation of four of Japan's nine Burma divisions, the spokesman said.

He said the Allies planned to drive the Japanese across the Chindwin river and "keep them moving if we can." He suggested the enemy might retreat as far as Mandalay, but warned of his familiar trick of "biting back when he appears to be in a bad way."

Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's headquarters reported that Allied patrols, probing the Northwestern Burma frontier regions, crossed the river without opposition from the Japanese fleeing toward the Chindwin.

Other Allied forces were reported to be making good progress in clearing the highway from Imphal to Tiddim, which is the retreat route of the Thirty-third Japanese division.

This division, the spokesman said, is the only one retaining military unit. The Thirty-first and Fifteenth have been written off "and there is no chance of a Japanese comeback before a long period of refitting and rehabilitation," he said.

Actual count showed 15,693 Japanese dead in India and 3,650 in Stilwell's fight for Myittha. For all North Burma since December there have been 22,341 Japanese killed and 200 captured.

American Forces Push Japanese Into Northeast Corner of Guam

By LEIF ERIKSSON

UNITED STATES PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, PEARL HARBOR, Aug. 8 (P)—Fast-driving American forces cleaning up the Guam campaign have surged north the last six and one half miles up Mt. Santa Rosa dominating the northeast shore and have pushed a center wedge threatening to cut the last, doomed Japanese in two.

Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced the successes today in a communique which listed the counted enemy dead since the invasion opened July 20 at more than 10,000 — not taking into account the Japanese buried en masse in a cemetery last week.

The west coast advance carried the marines and soldiers to Ft. Ritidian.

The east coast force pushed ahead more than three miles close to Anao Point, an equal distance from the northeast tip.

Allies Use 3,500 Planes in Support Of Ground Troops

Aerial Armadas Smash at German Frontline Posi- tions in France

By NED NORDNESS

LONDON, Wednesday, Aug. 9 (P)—More than 3,500 planes smashed at German front positions in strong support of ground troops driving toward Paris, but the tremendous effect of the aerial barrage was marred by a report that some of the bombs were unloaded on Allied troops.

Waves of United States heavy bombers, in a violent, heavy smash, tore the Germans loose from their blistering defenses below Caen, opening the space for Canadian tanks to lead the drive, after 1000 RAF heavies had softened the same positions four times before.

The American heavies stabbed through heavy flak, intense as any encounter over Europe, some bombers, including the lead plane which controlled the bombing of one formation, dropped their explosives among Allied troops, causing casualties.

The incident recalled another unfortunate occurrence July 25, when the Americans opened their offensive in the path of 1,500 American heavy bombers. Their targets distorted by rolling smoke and dust clouds, the bombers dropped five per cent of their explosives on Allied positions.

Thirteen Fortresses and Liberators were missing from today's attack and thirteen of the fighter escort were lost. Ten of the bombers fell in the Caen sector, where the bombers hovered in a sky blackened ten to fifteen minutes by flak. Four enemy planes were shot down and one destroyed on the ground.

Marauders and Havocs of the Ninth air force concentration on seven bridges in the Paris-Reims-Amiens area while late in the afternoon RAF Halifaxes bombed flying rocket installations in Northern France.

RAF torpedo-carrying Beaufighters attacked a German convoy of fourteen ships steaming north off the southwest coast of Norway and killed and 200 captured.

Some of Enemy's Strongest Lines Before Paris Are Smashed

Defenses 110 Miles to the Southwest Are Imperil- ed by Onrushing Amer- ican Troops

By JAMES M. LONG

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Wednesday, Aug. 9 (P)—The Canadians in their first great offensive in France smashed five miles yesterday into some of the strongest enemy lines before Paris, whose defenses 110 miles to the southwest were imperiled by onrushing American troops bounding at the gateway of Le Mans.

More than 1,000 United States heavy bombers—defying flak as intense as any met over Europe—shattered blistering strong points below Caen on the shortest route to Paris. Canadian tanks and infantry poured through the breaches and fought down the road to about 110 miles from the capital.

Smash Enemy Strongholds

One by one enemy strongholds which had blocked the Paris highway since D-Day were rolled up, and last night the Canadians were reported engaging the enemy at Cintheux, eight and one-half miles south of Caen.

The advance was not without its cost for flak shot down one of the lead bombers, and its formation lost some of its cars on Allied positions, causing casualties reminiscent of those on the American front in the breakout bombing west of St. Lo.

Canadian tanks and infantry raced through the dust pall across the rolling wheatlands and pastures, seized the hamlet of Gumesnil, and forced east to engage twenty Tiger tanks forming for a counter-thrust.

Ten miles beyond the point of farthest advance reported yesterday, Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley's doughboys were closing in on Le Mans—by German accounts in force—and one dispatch said vanguards had reached the big railroad and highway center.

These developments fell on the 26th anniversary of Germany's blackest hour in the First World War, when the Kaiser's high command decided that further resistance was hopeless.

But today, despite the crumbling defenses of Normandy and Brittany, the enemy fought fiercely below Vire before the British across the Orne southwest of Caen, and in the doomed north Brittany port of St. Malo.

In the Vire pocket, the lines swayed around Cherence-Le-Roussel where four enemy tank divisions which tried to break through the Avranches corridor were being ground to pieces between American armor striking from north and south and west.

Artillery Duels Mark War in Italy

By NOLAN NORGAARD

ROME, Aug. 8 (P)—British troops, slipping through the rain, were wiping out the last bands of enemy resistance south of the Arno river around Florence today, while the bulk of the Allied armies in Italy rested for the grand assault on the Gothic line just ahead.

There was hard fighting on high ground in the big bend of the Arno east of Florence.

But even this was on a small scale when compared with the slugging that has carried the Allies most of the way up the mountainous peninsula to positions before the heavily-fortified Gothic line above Florence and Pastre.

Fifth Army patrols were feeling out the enemy dispositions.

Germans in the big bend of the Arno above Arezzo threw Italian troops out of Monte Grillo, but the reversal had little effect on the general strategic situation.

Allied headquarters said both sides suffered heavy casualties when the Germans boomed a counterattack in this sector Sunday.

On the Fifth Army front to the west, there were artillery exchanges. German shells still fell in the southern section of Florence. An official source declared that air photographs disclosed a German claim that the Allies also had shelled the city.

CBS quoting the Vatican newspaper, Osservatore Romano, as saying, "Against the German words there are the blown-up bridges and roads blocked with wreckage. Florence is indeed an open city — open to war."

Servicemen Are Admitted Free To Race Track

Servicemen and women in uniform will be admitted free during the ten-day race meeting of the Cumberland Fair Association, it was announced yesterday by Clifton W. White, president.

White also stated that four days have been designated in honor of local fraternal and service organizations.

Tomorrow will be Loyal Order of Moose day and the Moose trophy will be presented to the owner of the winning horse in the Cal Cessna Memorial event, the fourth on the card.

Saturday will be Baltimore day on which Mayor Theodore R. McKeldin will be the honor guest.

Special days designated for next week include:

Tuesday—Fraternal Order of Eagles Day; Wednesday—Cumberland day; Thursday, American Legion day; Friday—West Virginia day and Saturday, B. P. O. Elks day.

The Harry A. Manley Memorial, $1,000 event, which will be run on the final day of the meeting, Saturday, August 19, will be over six and a half furlongs and not one mile and a sixteenth as announced in several out-of-town newspapers. The Manley has been a six and a half furlong race since the event was inaugurated at Fairgo.

PAN AMERICAN CLIPPER CRASHES; TWO KILLED

HAVANA, Aug. 8 (P)—The four-engined clipper used by Pan American Airways in blazing a trans-Pacific trail to China crashed while taking off from the port of Antilla today, and at least two passengers were killed.

Fifteen other passengers could not be accounted for on the first check and there was no way to determine the full toll until the plane could be lifted out of the water.

Airline officials at Miami, Fla., said it was impossible to learn immediately whether the passengers not accounted for were mingled with the crowd of spectators, or whether they had been lost.

Nine passengers and five crewmen were safe.

The cause of the accident was not made known at once. The Enroute from San Juan, Puerto Rico, to Miami, the clipper had alighted in Nipe bay to discharge and take on passengers at Antilla, a seaport in Northeastern Cuba.

The airline's divisional office at Miami reported that Jose R. Torres and Evangelino Lazaro, both of San Juan, lost their lives.

Eight Expelled

honest bullet," rasped the president of the court, Dr. Roland Feiler. "This is really the limit."

The picture of the conspiracy, as unfolded in the DNB version of the testimony, bore fantastic touches in the best tradition of modern "purple" trials.

For example, generals and colonels of one of the world's most efficient armies were described in testimony as considering solemnly, then shelving, a plot to kill Hitler with time-bombs placed in the knapsacks of three unsuspecting soldiers—set to explode while the foe was inspecting their new equipment.

Generals and colonels accustomed to flinging tons of explosives against the enemy in a casual day's battle, accustomed to controlling vast amounts of death-dealing munitions, were pictured as laboriously planning how to get hold of a few packages of high explosive for the assassination of Hitler.

The red-robed presiding judge of the highest Nazi tribunal—the Senate of the People's court—was quoted as interrupting testimony and browbeating a general into calling himself an ass and then contradicting him with the juristic observation, "you always will be a schweinhund (pig dog)."

An infantry general, a Berlin businessman, a people's councillor and a municipal councillor made up the People's court with a Berlin baker as its civil engineer serving as substitute judge. Eight defense councillors appointed by the state represented the accused.

The first to be questioned, Steff, acknowledged he had been involved in plans to assassinate Hitler as early as 1941. Witzleben, admitting he had been "involved in this matter," said he visited Gen. Gen. Ludwig von Beck in February, 1943, and they agreed the military strategists under Hitler were "no good."

Immediately after the attempt on Hitler's life von Beck was reported by Berlin as "not among the living." The DNB broadcast of trial testimony said when officers and men of the Berlin garrison raided a room where von Beck and other conspirators were gathered Hoepfner let himself be arrested but von Beck tried to kill himself with three pistol shots.

Hillbillies Turn Back Keifer Grocers, 11-4

The Froeburg Hillbillies scored their tenth victory in eleven last night in the Midget Baseball League yesterday, defeating the Keifer Grocers on the Celanese field, 11-4. Nelson, Caton, Delaney and Farrady each had two hits for Froeburg while Warren made two of the Grocers' five blows. The score:

CELANES 11: 300 206 4-11 13 3
FROEBURG 4: 000 000 0-4 13 3

Upsets Mark Women's Western Amateur Golf

CHICAGO, Aug. 8 (P)—Upsets marked the first round play today in the Women's Western Amateur golf championship, but three of the highly favored stars—Defending Tildist Dorothy German, Medalist Sally Sessions and veteran Phyllis Williams—came through with crushing wins as the field was reduced to sixteen contestants.

Last year's co-medalist, Catherine Fox of Bloomfield, N. J., and Kay Byrne, of Rye, N. Y., and veteran Ann Casey, of Mason City, Iowa, were expelled in a series of surprises.

British Commissioner For Palestine Wounded

LONDON, Aug. 8 (P)—Sir Harold MacMichael, outgoing British high commissioner for Palestine, was wounded in Jerusalem today in an ambush attack on his car, the Colonial office announced.

Sir Harold is being succeeded by Lord Gort, whose transfer to the Palestine and Trans-Jordan commission is announced July 19.

The Colonial office announcement said:

"Information has been received from Jerusalem that this afternoon the high commissioner and Lady MacMichael were motoring to a farewell function when their car, under police escort, was ambushed. The car was struck on the side of the road. The high commissioner was only slightly wounded and Lady MacMichael was unhurt, but two members of the high commissioner's staff were seriously injured.

"Police are taking all appropriate measures."

Russians Halted

The Russians made no mention of the continuing siege of Warsaw or other sections of the front except to record a slight widening of their bridgehead across the Vistula towards Kielce and improvement of positions further to the east along the Carpathian hills.

Small Chance for Success

The Germans, however, for all their desperate struggle to stabilize the lines, are fighting Soviet armor vastly superior in manpower, equipment and spirit, and acknowledged their peril in a broadcast stating that big Soviet reserves now were moving toward the Vistula bridgeheads to drive north to Warsaw along the west bank.

The Germans, too, were busy bringing up every reserve they could find. One broadcast quoted Field Marshal Walther von Model, remaining from Warsaw inspection trip, as saying, "after weeks of receding, now the time has come to stick to our positions. New forces from the Reich are arriving."

In the long run, the Nazis' stiffening defense was given small chance for success, and when it fails, it may be overrun swiftly from the east.

The line along which the Germans are making their desperate stand runs roughly in front of the northern and eastern frontiers of East Prussia, southward through Lomza to Warsaw southward along the Vistula, then follows the Carpathians under pressure of the Russian positions on the west side of the Vistula, and then back southeastward along the Carpathian foothills.

While advancing troops had the usual air canopy, medium and light American bombers concentrated on highways, railroads, bridges, freight yards and other enemy objectives northeast, east and south of Paris.

The heavy bombers in each instance were covered by up to 750 Lightnings which shot up targets.

The attack by RAF Lancasters and Halifaxes made a big noise. It was the first time that heavy bombers operated in support of ground troops after dark. The dazzling night assault was hailed officially as the closest support ever given ground forces by British heavies. The ground artillery fired red starbells and tracers to mark out targets.

While advancing troops had the usual air canopy, medium and light American bombers concentrated on highways, railroads, bridges, freight yards and other enemy objectives northeast, east and south of Paris.

attacks around Cherche-Le-Roussel.

On the North Brittany coast, American forces broke into the besieged port of St. Malo at three points, a front dispatch said, and fierce fighting raged in the ruined streets.

A dispatch by the German news agency, Transocean, said Allied glider-borne troops had been landed along the Loire Estuary in what appeared to be a show-down fight for the Nazi U-boat base of St. Nazaire in North Brittany.

After the American heavy bombing had finished the work begun by 1,000 British bombers last night, the Canadian forces broke through St. Agnan-De-Cramenil, seven miles south of Caen and southwest of the Vimont road block of anti-tank artillery.

"The hinge is loosening," said a senior Canadian staff officer. A breakthrough there would leave Field Marshal Gen. Guenther von Kluge without a real defense line short of the Seine and would brighten the prospect of a early liberation of Paris.

The Germans continued talk of an imminent Allied landing on the Mediterranean coast of France, asserting some American Fifth Army troops had been relieved in Italy and there was a great concentration of transport and landing craft on Italy's West coast.

As the American bag of prisoners reached 85,556, 1,000 more since Monday, the Allied command again fell silent on doughboy movements. The Germans, however, along the north bank of the Loire.

The Germans admitted the Americans were in the department of Sarthe, of which Le Mans is the capital, at two places—showing the main forces had covered at least half the distance from the Mayenne river to the city.

St. Malo Cut Off

Other American forces at the bottom of the 130-mile front were reported racing on south toward the Loire river to meet ten enemy divisions of Southern France, which Spanish dispatches said were rushing north by bicycle and horse-drawn vehicle, abandoning the Mediterranean flank except for weak garrisons. In the Breton peninsula American armor was re-during the defenses of all five main ports. A concentrated attack was opened on the submarine base of Lorient, whose garrison was reported ready to surrender.

St. Malo was completely cut off with the die-hard holding force still resisting. (The Germans said the Americans had broke into St. Malo at one point.)

Lt. Gen. H. D. G. Crerar sent his first Canadian army into action with an eye on history, Aug. 8, 1918, when the German high command decided the war was lost. Crerar was before Amiens as a senior artillery officer.

He celebrated with two innovations in his first attack south of Caen last night—the use of 1,000 heavy British bombers in a night bombardment and a big-scale tank attack under cover of darkness. Practically everything about the operation was as new and untried as the army itself.

Tracer shells guided the attackers to their targets and one by one the strongholds fell: May, St. Martin-De-Fourcay, Rougemont, La Roque, Tilly-La-Campagne, Gargelles and St. Aignan. This first major Canadian attack in France was aimed toward Falaise, twenty miles south of Caen, and it appeared to have carried one-third of the distance or more.

Allies Use

three merchant ships and six escort vessels were reported damaged. Three of the RAF fighters were lost. American Mustangs escorted the Beaufighters and shot up Norwegian airmen.

Joigny Bridge Destroyed

The five-span Joigny bridge over the Yonne river, seventy miles southeast of Paris, was destroyed by the Marauders. Other bridges hit by the Ninth air force in a move to hinder enemy transport included two bridges over the Marne at Nanteuil, 25 miles northeast of Paris; a bridge twenty miles north of Amiens in the vicinity of Reims and another southeast of Paris. One Marauder and two Havocs were lost to flak. Thirteen American heavy bombers and thirteen escorting fighters were reported missing from all of today's operations.

Eighth air force Mustangs, Thunderbolts and Lightnings destroyed or damaged more than 1,000 freight cars, sixty locomotives, fifty-eight motor trucks, forty-three additional trucks on railway flatcars, fifteen German staff cars, a number of oil tanks, flak towers and river boats and barges.

Four enemy planes were reported destroyed in air combat and one on the ground.

More than 600 American heavy bombers blasted German anti-tank defenses below Caen today in close support of the Canadian first army's drive against the northern anchor of the enemy's line in Normandy.

The American assault originally was scheduled at 1,000 heavy bombers as a follow-up to the attack by more than 1,000 RAF heavies fourteen hours before which blazed the path for British and Canadian in ripping open the enemy's defenses below Caen. The army command decided at the last minute, however, that 600 bombers could do the job and sent 400 Fortresses and Liberators ranging over Northern France in smashes at enemy airfields and robot bomb installations.

Aerial History Made

It was estimated that 8,500 tons of explosives cascaded in the two concentrated attacks on strategic points that had been an Allied advance below Caen. The Fortresses and Liberators dropped about 1,800 tons.

The heavy bombers in each instance were covered by up to 750 Lightnings which shot up targets. The attack by RAF Lancasters and Halifaxes made a big noise. It was the first time that heavy bombers operated in support of ground troops after dark. The dazzling night assault was hailed officially as the closest support ever given ground forces by British heavies. The ground artillery fired red starbells and tracers to mark out targets.

While advancing troops had the usual air canopy, medium and light American bombers concentrated on highways, railroads, bridges, freight yards and other enemy objectives northeast, east and south of Paris.

Wife Asking Divorce Says Husband Deserted Month after Marriage

Accusing her husband of deserting her one month after their marriage, Mrs. Helen Hymes filed suit in circuit court yesterday for a divorce from Amos S. Hymes. According to the bill of complaint the couple were married here last September 16. Mrs. Hymes is represented by Harold E. Naughton.

In a second divorce action filed yesterday, Mrs. Cecile Belle Turner Ralston accused Adrian Thorne Ralston of desertion and asked for the custody of their two minor children. They were married March 25, 1937, and lived together until May of this year.

A court order signed by Chief Judge Walter C. Capper ordered Ralston to pay $60 for support of the children during the litigation. Mrs. Ralston is represented by Unger & Carl.

Suits also were filed yesterday by Joseph Laupert against Margaret M. Laupert and by Charles T. Ralston against Mrs. Mae Ralston.

Two Cumberland Airmen Receive Medal Awards

Two Cumberland airmen attached to the Eighth air force, in England, have received awards for their accomplishments in combat flying over Continental Europe.

They are Tech. Sgt. Emory Crites, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emory Crites, who was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross and Staff Sgt. Donald T. McGraw, son of Mrs. Anna McGraw, 309 Emily street, who received the Air Medal.

The citation which accompanied Sgt. Crites' award states that while participating as radio operator in a number of combat missions over Europe, he displayed great courage and skill fighting from his gun position and materially aided in all the missions his ship made over Europe. He also holds the Air Medal with three Oak Leaf clusters.

Sgt. McGraw received his award for meritorious achievement while participating in bombing attacks in support of the invasion. He is a waist gunner on a flying Fortress. He received his wings July 5, 1942, at Tyndall field, Fla.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Mullan, this city, have received word of the promotion of their son, Paul A. Mullan, to sergeant in England.

Returned to the United States on the hospital ship St. Mihel, which docked at Charleston Harbor, S. C., Pvt. Alvin N. Ingram, 17½ Grand avenue, is now a patient in Stark General Hospital, Charleston.

After treatment there he will be evacuated to a general hospital nearer his home or to another army hospital for specialized treatment. He was wounded in action, in Italy, May 25.

An Appealing Phase Of the Court Amendment

ESTABLISHMENT of an administrative system for the courts of the state headed by the chief judge of the appeals court is one of the attractive phases prompting ratification of the constitutional amendment to be voted on in the November election providing for reorganization of the state court of appeals.

Judge Morris A. Soper, of Baltimore, United States circuit judge for the Fourth judicial circuit, has clearly explained how this would be effected in his recent able exposition of the subject, and has given adequate answers to objections made against this part of the plan.

The chief objection heard during formulation of the proposed amendment was that it would be centralization of authority in a single judge with the other members of the court regimented thereby. This is seen to fail by the fact that the system would not be under the dictation of a single judge, but under the control of the entire court.

At present the judicial power of the state is divided among the organization and an administrative head, Judge Soper said the average citizen would naturally suppose that a judicial system employing so many judges vested with powers vitally affecting the rights of the people would have some responsible head to direct its business affairs. This is not so at present. There is complete lack of integration of the judicial circuits of the state," Judge Soper said. "Every circuit stands alone wholly independent of all others and every judge stands independent and alone save for the power of reversal in the court of appeals." Judge Soper admits that complete independence of decision must be preserved, but insists there is no reason why the judicial manpower of the state should not be organized for purposes of efficiency with a supervisory head. That seems logical and reasonable.

The proposed amendment would remedy these defects in simple manner. It provides that the chief judge of the court of appeals shall be the administrative head of the judicial system of the state and shall from time to time require from the judges of the county and city courts reports as to their judicial work and business. He is also empowered in cases of vacancy, illness, disqualification or absence of an appellate judge, to designate any trial judge to sit on the court of appeals; and he may also designate a judge of the court of appeals or a trial judge to sit in any trial court of the state. While these powers are given to the chief judge, they are subject to such rules and regulations as the whole court may see fit to make.

There is no denying the fact that the lack of such a system of shifting judges has greatly hampered the judicial business of the state in the past. Its operation would be facilitated by the requirement of stated reports on the business of the various courts in hand.

Judge Soper points to the administration of the federal courts as to the effectiveness of such a system. Every federal trial court is required to make periodic reports of the business done to the administrator of the courts in Washington so that the amount and character of the work done in each district becomes a matter of public information, open to all. Also, every district and appellate judge is subject to call to service in any part of the country. The presiding circuit judge of any federal circuit may assign any of the circuit or district judges to sit in any United States court in any state in the circuit; and, with the co-operation of the presiding judge of the circuit, he may assign any of the circuit or district judges to sit in any United States court in any district in the circuit.

"The flexibility of this arrangement," Judge Soper declared, "and the willing co-operation of the judges have had a notable influence in keeping the United States courts abreast of their dockets." The plan should similarly affect the courts of Maryland to the advantage both of judges and litigants.

The Flying Bomb May Insure Peace

THE DESTRUCTION caused by the Nazi robot flying bombs appears to be far greater than has been officially reported if cable reports are to be relied on.

Winston Churchill reported on August 3 that 4,735 had been killed in Southern England, 14,000 seriously injured, many more slightly injured and 17,000 houses completely destroyed and 800,000 damaged. A cable report from his London correspondent to the Wall Street Journal published five days later stated that up to then 177,000 houses had been destroyed and 2,900,000 damaged. Casualties, not listed, must have been in proportion.

While obviously ineffective as a military weapon as now used by the Germans, the flying bomb may prove to be one of the best contributions to the maintenance of world peace.

The principal of the bomb has long been known, but, as the German experience shows, its development has been carried forward under such handicaps of haste and shortage of material that the Germans have done little more than prove that it has a terrible potential.

If the United Nations choose to make the most of the bomb's possibilities following the war, they will carry the crude German experiment on until the bomb can be launched with great accuracy upon designated distant targets. Its size and destructive power can be expanded almost at will.

With such a weapon in the hands of countries which are determined to keep the peace and deterred by aggressor nations, the element of force in stopping a war of conquest before it gets started will be improved tremendously.

Keeping huge reserves of these bombs within range of cities, industrial centers and all possible military objectives in Germany, Italy, Japan and any other country which might aspire to start a war of conquest, could be an effective means of nipping that aspiration in the bud. The German militarists may have shown the peace-loving nations how to keep the peace.

Looking Ahead To Peacetime

SPEAKING at Springfield, Ill., the other day, Governor Dewey pointed out that there are certain things which will be peacetime years, in which we shall build the best peace the world has ever seen; and we shall hope and pray that it will be a lasting peace.

Perhaps too much emphasis has been placed upon the war bearing on the current presidential race. True the war has not yet been won with decisiveness and finality. But the trend of events in both Europe and the Pacific strongly suggests that the struggle will be ended in the not distant future.

This means that the president elected in November will be in office during the period of economic reconstruction, that he will be called upon to exercise sound business judgment of direct relationship to the citizenry and that the policies he adopts will exert a vital influence upon the financial stability of the nation.

The voter's problem, in other words, boils down to a choice between government doles and healthy private enterprise, between unrestrained federal spending and careful debt reduction, between bad business and good business in the conduct of national affairs.

The peacetime years ahead cannot continue the fool's paradise of the present wartime orgy nor can they maintain the political debauch of a power-drunk bureaucracy.

Governor Dewey will do well to stress the immense importance to the American people of a return to business sanity and fiscal balance. If the peacetime years are not to be years of economic tragedy, the voters will have to do some sound thinking between now and the November election.

To Guarantee Opportunity

ALTHOUGH war has forced this nation to adopt many of the policies of those governments which seek domination of their peoples, Americans firmly believe that our constitution is the best instrument yet developed for reconciling government by majority with the rights of individuals.

But if our constitutional liberty is to be maintained in peacetime, certain current tendencies must be reversed. One principle rigidly to be maintained is that the constitution be amended only in the manner provided in the constitution itself—never by executive and legislative fiat or judicial interpretation. The tendency to take powers from the states and concentrate them in Washington should be abandoned. Congress should abolish the power of bureaucrats to control the lives and activities of citizens by means of directives.

The founders of the constitution proposed a guarantee of opportunity, as well as liberty, to the individual. Opportunity will prove a reality in peacetime only if we establish conditions that result in jobs and better living standards. We must understand that over any period no group can be prosperous unless other groups also prosper. We must see the necessity of encouraging competition, of preventing monopoly and special privileges for management, labor, agriculture or industry.

The sound formula for national progress is the power and dignity of the free man, shaping his destiny by his own self-reliant efforts.

English and American novelists, we read, are trying to find the most beautiful words in the language. That's easy. They are, "I quit," as spoken by a certain Adolf Hitler.

With its world silk market shot to pieces, it must be one of Japan's major headaches feeding all those making silkworms.

Wounds That Do Not Heal

By MARSHALL MASLIN

There, on the inner side of the second finger on my left hand, was once a tiny, white wart.

It troubled the small boy who had it there. He was always injuring it, or feeling with it and making it bleed. At last he cut it off and rooted it out and allowed it to become infected. For days it was swollen and sore and a mighty battle was fought in the blood stream, between the armies of the white corpuscles that rushed to the battleground to envelope the enemy germs and leave them dying in the breach through which they had hoped to storm and conquer a human body.

The defenders won the wound healed, skin grew over the battle ground. Peace was declared and the war was over.

I look at that finger now and see no sign of that mighty little conflict. Not even a scar. Not an inward pain. All gone. All healed. And only memory tells me there was ever a wart on the second finger of my left hand. The victory was complete—because I WANTED it to be.

But I remembered other conflicts. Mistakes I made. Injuries I suspected and resented. Small troubles I puffed up until they seemed as large as the balloon at the county fair. Wounds to my pride, to my self-respect, to the picture everyone carries of himself as a strong, bold or sensible being.

And these injuries do not heal quite as smoothly. You get over them and you think you throw them out of your life. But you do not quite win the battle. The white corpuscles of the spirit are not as formidable as the small soldiers in the blood stream. The soldiers of our courage and sanity, our saving philosophy, are often betrayed by stupid fears and by our unexpressed desires. We keep our spiritual wounds open because we do not have quite enough faith in the crude German experiment.

We who live in our sodas are not so wise as our own amazing habits. We wound ourselves and perpetuate our own scars. . . . And when, years afterward, we come upon those scars they still have power to flame with shame or rage.

Because we have not allowed

VICTIMS OF WARTIME NEGLIGENCE

Credit Is Given the Smith-Connally Act For Controlling the Philadelphia Strike

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—If it had not been for the Smith-Connally law, the transit strike in Philadelphia might have caused considerably more damage than it did.

On every side it is conceded that the arrests and threat of arrests of leaders who carried on the strike after the property was seized by the government, helped to break up the strike. It was unthinkable, of course, that the great government of the United States would be without statutory power to prevent a paralysis of transportation. But before the Smith-Connally law was passed, there were no effective statutes explicitly prohibiting interference with interstate commerce or with transportation systems by means of strike.

Whatever protection had previously been afforded through provisions in the interstate commerce laws was wiped out by a decision of the Supreme Court of the United States which held that physical interference with shipments by interstate commerce could be carried out in connection with a labor dispute and would not be punished if in connection with a strike.

Strongly Opposed

When the Smith-Connally bill was before Congress, labor leaders made every effort to defeat it and, even after the bill was passed by both houses, they brought pressure to bear upon President Roosevelt with the hope that he would veto it.

Mr. Roosevelt did veto the measure but it was passed over his veto by a two-thirds vote of both houses of Congress.

It is interesting to recall that the president gave as one of the reasons for his veto the fact that Congress had lacked on a provision prohibiting labor unions from contributing to political campaigns so that they would be on the same footing as corporations. It was believed by members of Congress at the time that this would prevent the CIO from using labor union funds in political campaigns, but, due to the laxity of enforcement by the Roosevelt administration, the same objective now has been accomplished for political purposes as would have been the case if Congress had bowed to the wishes of the president and eliminated the clause that was objectionable to the unions.

Repeal Urged

For many weeks after the Smith-Connally bill became law over the veto, a steady campaign was carried on for its repeal.

The controversy is a states' rights issue, one of several that have bubbled up in Congress in the last year or so. The question is whether unemployment compensation shall be federalized or shall remain as it is now, that is, in the hands of the states.

The battle over this issue threatens to be bitter and prolonged and may delay action on postwar unemployment compensation legislation until after the German army surrenders.

It also bids fair to hold up other demobilization and industrial reconversion legislation since it is generally agreed that the unemployment compensation question should have the right of way over other reconversion matters. These latter deal with the reconversion of wartime plants to peacetime pursuits and the disposal of billions of dollars worth of government-owned plants and surplus war materials.

Congressional leaders believe the surplus property disposal problem and general demobilization machinery can be worked out without striking controversial snags.

Two Different Approaches

Two entirely different approaches to the unemployment compensation problem have been presented to the Senate. One is contained in the Kilgore bill which would provide for direct federal unemployment compensation ranging from $12 to $35 per week for discharged war workers and $20 per week for service men, plus $5 a week for each dependent up to $35 a week maximum.

ried on by labor union lobbyists who urged a repeal of the measure.

The value of the Smith-Connally law is that once the government seizes the property, no strike can be maintained because obviously the individual workers would go back to work unless some concerted pressure was brought to bear upon them. Any concerted action to keep a strike going is usually the act of two or more individuals, who can be prosecuted under the Smith-Connally law.

One of the chief activities of the CIO these days is to punish representatives of Congress at the polls who voted for the Smith-Connally law. In other words, those who saw in the bill an effort to prevent interference with the war effort are about to be penalized at the polls for having done their duty.

Proponents Marked

The CIO committee has made up a list of members of Congress whom it intends to fight in the congressional elections and one of the principal tests in determining if a member of Congress is to feel the CIO whip is whether he did not vote for the Smith-Connally law.

Today, as the devastating results of the Philadelphia transit strike are viewed, the constructive purpose served by the Smith-Connally law can hardly be disputed. It is the kind of statute that should have been passed many years before, and while there are some clumsy provisions in it which can be corrected by future Congresses, the main idea—namely, that there must be respect for the government of the United States once a property is lawfully seized—is something so axiomatic that it is amazing to find that labor union politicians have the effrontery to try to get it repealed.

Battle over Issue Of States' Rights Hits Reconversion

By CENTRAL PRESS

WASHINGTON.—The problem of working out legislation to prepare the nation for a German collapse consists basically of one major controversy and a great deal of laborious detail.

The controversy is a states' rights issue, one of several that have bubbled up in Congress in the last year or so. The question is whether unemployment compensation shall be federalized or shall remain as it is now, that is, in the hands of the states.

The battle over this issue threatens to be bitter and prolonged and may delay action on postwar unemployment compensation legislation until after the German army surrenders.

Plight of Nazi Army between Loire And the Seine Is Growing Critical

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Unrelieved by a desperate but futile counterattack in four divisions aimed at Avranches, the plight of the main strength of the Nazi army between the Loire and the Seine in France is growing hourly more critical. Its whole center segment from the punctured Orne line to Le Mans, seventy miles to the south, appears in grave danger.

Location Not Revealed

The exact location of Allied spearheads to the north and south was not officially revealed. Field dispatches indicated, however, that the Canadian army, operating as such and under Canadian command for the first time in Dominion history, had broken through German thick defenses east of the Orne in a power drive that was approaching Falaise if it had not reached that important function town. To the south, one of three fast moving American armored columns was reported ed Le Mans. Thus both ends of a sixty mile strip of the fine Caen-Lemans highway — which, runs through Falaise, Argentan, and Alencon thirty-five miles in rear of the enemy center sector of which the counterattack in the Mortain-Sourval area was the eastern apex — are in Allied hands.

There seems no question that the Canadian drive, shepherded by a furious night-and-day mass air bombardment, is pointed down the session, to promote legislation for what could be another WPA. The LEO-Kilgore bill, backed by left-wing New Dealers, proposes unemployment compensation for war workers up to $35 a week, in effect establishing this amount as a minimum wage since no one would care to work for less.

A hue and cry is being spread that there may be 10,000,000 unemployed, and under the pressure of that fabulous supposition, the movement is being generated for the utmost funds, to be handled by the federal government—in time for election usage, if the peace comes as soon as Mr. Churchill has predicted.

Engineered under Order

Mr. Roosevelt's running mate, Senator Truman, engineered the bill out of the Military Affairs committee, no doubt under order.

This may be at least one fresh factor behind Governor Dewey's recent concentration of attack upon the centralization of authority in the federal government. Certainly no amount of money could be raised to match the $30,000,000,000 campaign influence of such an industrial unemployment compensation measure, plus the soldier benefits up to $25 already passed.

Also, its provision opened legal possibilities for such things as a new NRA, ordering businesses to work refusing to give materials to business which do not co-operate, etc.

The form of legislation is what will count. If it is to be taken out of politics, Congress will have to adopt some modification of the federalized controls as well as modify the rates.

States Have Funds

Democratic Senator George has a bill which would set up a state method of payment in accordance with the existing social security scheme, now covering 30,000,000 people. The federal government would guarantee the solvency of state funds although state directors contend they have a sufficient sum of four to five billions to meet the shock of postwar employment now credited to them.

A third course has been offered by the economic stabilizer, James F. Byrnes, somewhat like the Kilgore bill, uniting standards under federal management and reimbursing the states. While this was presumed to be the official administration idea, it appears now that Truman, not Byrnes, is acting for the White House even though the bill violates several recommendations of the president's special advisor on this subject, Mr. Baruch.

Inroads Cause Resentment

The reason the CIO course will probably lose in the end is that all states, Democratic and Republican, are resentful of the inroads that have been made on their sovereignty and fearful of what this would do to business.

Most Republicans probably will join in behind the George measure along with the southern states-right Democrats.

As Republican Senator Vandenberg has said, the Kilgore rates would not only give the industrial workers, who have been making highest war salaries, a greater benefit than the soldier, but would be more than a normal wage for many ordinary non-war workers. In the South, he thinks, no one would work for a time.

As far as northern industrial states are concerned, some now pay over $20 a week in benefits. Consequently, there will be a tendency to delay action on the measure in the belief that the states can care for the situation.

fast paced German retreat behind the Seine, that Nazi main forces could be caught and virtually annihilated in the field leaving a wide road eastward behind the channel coast open for an Allied march on Germany.

Allied headquarters have obviously been holding back word of American advances in the Loire valley and on the Brittany peninsula many hours, copying Russian technique. That is sufficient evidence that German communications are badly snarled and that the Nazi command staff does not know from hour to hour or even from day to day the exact position of roving Yankee armored forces. Coupled with German lack of air power even to scout enemy operations adequately, that multiplies staff difficulties for the foe and the Allies are taking full advantage of the fact.

Flanking Threat Apparent

In either event the flanking threat of the foe is apparent. There are obvious possibilities, short of a

Governor Dewey Leads Roosevelt In Three Midwestern States

Republican Nominee Holds
Edge in Iowa, Minnesota and Wisconsin

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., Aug. 8—Governor Thomas E. Dewey leads President Roosevelt in three more Midwestern states—Iowa, Minnesota, and Wisconsin—polls just completed among civilian voters there show Dewey thus is ahead in all seven of the Midwestern states so far reported by the Institute. These include, besides the three reported today, Illinois, Ohio, Michigan, and Indiana. Surveys of other states in the Midwest will be reported soon.

The president holds an advantage, as of today, in eleven of the twenty states reported by the Institute during the past five weeks, with a total of 139 electoral votes. Dewey leads in the other nine, with a total of 171 electoral votes.

Civilian voters in Iowa, Minnesota, and Wisconsin, scientifically selected to represent a cross-section of the voting population of the three states, were asked:

"If the presidential election were being held today, how would you vote—for Dewey or for Roosevelt?"

The results:

IOWA
FOR DEWEY . . . . . 56%
FOR ROOSEVELT . . . . . 44%

MINNESOTA
FOR DEWEY . . . . . 53%
FOR ROOSEVELT . . . . . 47%

WISCONSIN
FOR DEWEY . . . . . 56%
FOR ROOSEVELT . . . . . 44%

While the president won both Minnesota and Wisconsin in 1940 by narrow margins, he lost heavily in popular strength as compared to 1936. The table below indicates that the trend away from Roosevelt has continued in these three states between 1940 and today:

	PER CENT FOR F.D.R.	Iowa	Minn.	Wisc.
1936	56%	67%	68%
1940	48%	52%	51%
TODAY	44%	47%	44%

Individual reports on the remaining twenty-eight states will be published during the next two weeks. Following that, reports will be made periodically to show the trend of sentiment in every state. The box score to date follows:

	DEWEY LEADING	% For Dewey	% For F.D.R.

Trotting Classic To Return Home

GOSHEN, N. Y., Aug. 8 (AP)—The Hambletonian, blue ribbon event of light harness horse racing, returns home tomorrow with a Kansas-owned but Kentucky-bred filly, Yankee Maid, the odds-on choice to take down the major share of the $35,000 purse.

After a year's sojourn in metropolitan New York, the classic of all trotting stakes again will be raced in the county fair atmosphere of Good Time park's triangular-shaped track as eleven hand-picked three-year olds match speed and stamina before a crowd that may reach 20,000.

Except for last year the buggy whip derby has been raced at Good Time park since 1930.

Six colts and five fillies will start but standard bred horse experts, who made up the bigger part of the crowd for the first of the three-day grand circuit meeting today, couldn't see anything but A. L. Deroy's filly from Wichita.

Gift Mailing Rules Described by Local Postal Authorities

Parcels for Servicemen Abroad Must Be Sent by October 15

Announcing that the Christmas mailing period for both army and navy overseas forces will be September 15 to October 15, local postal officials said yesterday that more care must be taken in wrapping and packing parcels securely and addressing them clearly and correctly. Gifts must be packed in boxes made of metal, wood, solid fiberboard or strong double-faced corrugated fiberboard, reinforced with strong gummed paper tape or tied with strong twine, officials said.

Gifts must be no larger than a shoe box and must not exceed five pounds in weight.

Not more than one parcel may be mailed in any one week to the same serviceman or in behalf of the same mailer. Perishable goods, such as fruits and vegetables, except spoil, are prohibited, as are intoxicants and inflammable materials such as matches or lighter fluids. Sharp instruments, such as razors and knives, must have their edges and points protected so that they cannot go through the coverings and damage other packages.

Many parcels were not delivered last year because they were crushed in transit and the gift and the outside wrapper were separated, it was said. Persons mailing packages to servicemen overseas were urged to write the address of the sender and the results of their mental or physical examination inside the package as well as outside.

After October 15 no gift parcel may be mailed to a soldier without the presentation of a written request from him. Those who plan to send gifts to military personnel at far distant points should begin to mail their packages on the opening day of the period, September 15.

A large percentage of rejections for military service were for mental reasons, officials disclosed, and a recent directive from Selective Service headquarters in Washington has ordered local draft boards to review the cases of men who may now be qualified to serve in the armed forces.
